Address Change Requested

Dear WBC family,

I pray that you are still seeking revival in your own personal life. I pray that as a church we are still moving toward a church-wide revival. I believe that is what God is calling us to and there is no turning back.

I mentioned in a sermon recently that William Barclay while commenting on Paul's writing said that Paul makes it clear Christians have two obligations:

1. To God
2. To our fellow man

When he was speaking about our obligation to God Barclay pointed out that we should never soil the precious gift of His perfect Son, the sacrifice for our sin, Jesus. Our love toward our Savior and living by His example constrains us—draws us to want to be like Jesus.

As for our obligation to our fellow men, we must know the freedom we enjoy is not to sin and lead others astray, but to live our lives as examples of the love and forgiveness that has been shown to us. Our freedom, he insists, is not to sin, but to serve others in love.

Do you take those obligations seriously? That is not a rhetorical question, seriously, do you take your obligation to God and to your fellow man seriously?

I think that many would quickly proclaim that they take their obligation to God seriously. Some would point to their church attendance, their leadership roles within the church, their giving and their dedication to Sunday School as evidence of their fulfilling the obligation they have toward God. However, I think God wants more than that. Robotic repetition of behaviors we have accepted as necessary is not all that God seeks from us. Instead He wants everything we've got—heart, mind, soul and strength. He gave His all for us and we are obligated to give our all back to Him. Without Him we would not have life at all, so we owe Him all—nothing held back, all or Him.

The obligation to others is different. I believe that God calls us to live a life that when viewed by others, even those who are not a part of the faith, it would be obvious that there is something different. Our lives should shine for Him—everyday, all the time—and we should represent Him always.

On a recent court show, a teenaged car jacker said he only worked for his father two or three days a week because he has a social life. The judge was quite clear that he should have no social life until he had paid for his offenses. I think that Christians often think in a similar way—"Sure, I love God and all that. I even give Him several Sundays a year, but the rest of the time is mine." That is simply not what God called for—He expects our all and that includes serving your fellow man and constantly being a reflection of His Son.

As things around us heat up, let us not forget that God has called us to follow Him with a passion and to live our lives as to inspire others. It is the obligation of all Christ followers.

In His service,

Pastor Rusty Mullins

and try not to be surprised by it.

Your comfort is not your pastor's primary concern. I hope you know this. If not, read the Bible and remind yourself why your church exists in the first place. You may unconsciously think that making you happy is why your pastor is on the job, but that is not our assignment or our call. Trying to be priest (comforting the afflicted) and prophet (afflicting the comfortable) to the same people is confusing, messy and an invitation to misunderstandings.

Our group engaged in fine conversation around each point, and I sensed a genuine interest in thinking more along these lines. Our last item was to respond to my request of the laity present to tell me "what you wish your pastor knew, but are afraid to tell them." Next time around, I'll share those revealing thoughts.

THE NELLIE BAUSELL LIBRARY NOTES—JUNE 2010

Eat the Cookies—Buy the Shoes: Giving Yourself Permission to Lighten Up by Joyce Meyer teaches us we're not built for guilt. God never intended for us to be loaded down with guilt. Using stories from the Bible, Joyce describes celebration after celebration—all ordered through God, and the way they enhanced people's ability to live productive lives. God wants us to enjoy the lives He has given us.

Karen Kingsbury is the author of Take Three, the third book in the Above the Line series. Chase Ryan and Keith Ellison set out to change the world with their films—and they are finally seeing their dreams come true. The dedicated producers are deep in negotiations with America's top young movie star to play their next inspirational movie. But life takes a sudden turn for Chase, removing him from Jeremiah Productions permanently. In the process, Keith brings on one of the Baxter family members and the movie making continues.

Mimi Heldreth has given the three above books to WBC. Many thanks to Mimi for thinking of our Library.

Shelly Shepard Gray wrote Winter's Awakening. What if the future you had always counted on suddenly became uncertain? In a small Amish town of Sugarcreek, Ohio, Joshua knows what's expected of him: to work in the family store and to finally marry Gretta, whom he has courted for years. But when a new English family moves in next door—and their teenage daughter catches his eye, Joshua wonders if his future plans are to firmly set in stone. We can thank Brenda Tucker for this book.

Your Best Life Now: 7 Steps to Living at your Full Potential is one of Joel Osteen books. Do you often dream of living a more rewarding life? Or aspire to a better job, a stronger marriage, a happier home. Perhaps you simply want to accomplish more and leave a lasting legacy for future generations. If you are like most people, you have written these goals and dreams on a list. In this straightforward guide, Joel Osteen gives you a way to improve your life for good, and help you experience victory, joy, and satisfaction every day!

Bill and I read the following article in the Religious Herald last week. We think it is really good information, and as a former pastor and wife, think it should be shared. We know that many of you don't subscribe or have access to this publication, but you do read our Beacon.

We don't know that we could have shared this with our churches while serving as pastor and wife, but do feel we can share this as members of WBC.

VITAL SIGNS: Seven things your pastor wishes you knew, but is afraid to tell you

By: Bill Wilson, Thursday, May 13, 2010—Religious Herald

The transition out of local church pastoral and staff ministry after 33 years on the job is proving to be a provocative, illuminating and sobering experience. Sitting on the receiving side of the pulpit is a very different way to spend a Sunday morning. Some parts of it are extremely gratifying, others a bit frustrating.

Beyond the change in Sunday routine, I am thinking a great deal these days about the interchange between clergy and laity, and how to help encourage healthy conversation in those relationships. Last fall I led a workshop under the heading of "Seven things your pastor wishes you knew, but is afraid to tell you." I was inspired by the title of Buzz Thomas' excellent book of a few years ago, and thought I would try out some of my thoughts on this fine group of clergy and laity. Here were my thoughts:

It's not their fault, but your minister didn't learn everything they needed to be a pastor in seminary. Like doctors leaving medical school, clergy need a time to do their "residency" and learn to practice in the field what they've learned in the classroom. Actually, that theological education never stops—so give your minister permission to not be perfect and to always be learning. Provide money and time for those times. Everyone wins when this is a shared understanding and priority.

Pastors must learn to "choose their guilt." There is always more to do than there is time to do it. Every minister must come to terms with an inherent guilt around what he or she did not do today. Too often that means their own family gets the left-overs. Every healthy minister wrestles with this daily. By the way, this is a dilemma for all of us regardless our vocation.

Be kind if you have a criticism. Healthy clergy welcome constructive criticism. Everyone abhors petty nitpicking. Make sure you engage in the former and not the latter. Make an appointment and talk face-to-face, and always avoid using e-mail or texting for anything that has high emotional content. If you must write, please don't resort to an anonymous letter. Nothing is less effective or more unbecoming of a Christian. Your church needs to establish a clear and thoughtful way for the congregation to give meaningful feedback and reviews. When that is lacking, criticism usually turns ugly.

Have some realistic expectations for the pastor's family. How many ways can we say this? Please give your minister's family an extra measure of grace. Life in the fishbowl is real and often a major source of anxiety. Affirm whenever you can, and if you have a genuine concern, re-read #3.

Please err on the side of generosity. I'm not just talking about money, though I am talking about money. I also mean be generous with your attention, your questions, your interest, your ability to remember my mother's name, your laughter, your food, your jokes, your invitations to ball games, your life.

Your pastor loves you, but he/she may or may not like you. Just like in your family, there are days when your spouse/child/parent loves you, but is frustrated by you or wondering what they did to deserve you. That ambivalence is part of being human. Own it, expect it

HIGHER GROUND (GRADES 6-12)

Missions Fuge 2010: June 14-19

This year, we are sending a small group of youth from Higher Ground to Missions Fuge 2010. This is a nationally known youth camp sponsored by Life-way. We will join 650 other youth and college students from various states for a week of worship, mission projects, Bible study, and fun fellowship! It is truly a great opportunity and I ask that you all remember us in prayer as we go in the name of Jesus.

Thank you to the ones of you who have generously given to help some of these young people afford to go. When you give the way you have, you are providing opportunities for Christian growth and influence—and the chance to have a life-changing experience in the Lord. So thank you from the bottom of my heart!

If any others would like to contribute to this week of Missions and Worship for these young people—we thank you and greatly appreciate the help.

Thank you to all of you who will remember us in prayer as we travel and serve. Pray for our safety, our renewal, and for God to work in our hearts in fresh new ways!

And lastly—if there are any youth or college students who are still interested in joining us for this wonderful week—please contact Jennifer Mullins and we will add you to our group. Pray and consider going—because it looks to be very special for many reasons!

JOINT DAY OF WORSHIP, CLAYTOR LAKE BAPTIST CAMP

On June 6, members of the churches in the East River and Highlands Baptist Associations will gather at Claytor Lake Baptist Camp for our annual picnic. Rev. Olen Gardner and his group will provide our Worship Service in Concert. We will gather for fellowship at 3:30pm, supper at 5pm, Worship at 6pm, and dismissal at 7pm.

Our offering goal for this year is $3,500 for each association. East River's offering will be divided three ways: 1/3 for the Bland Ministry Center, 1/3 for the Association office and 1/3 for Claytor Lake Baptist Camp. If, however, the treasurer needs the offering to bring all accounts in the annual budget current, these funds will be used for this need.

Highlands funds will be divided equally among the Associational Office and Claytor Lake Baptist Camp operating fund.

Dear Church Family,

Thank you for your prayers and support. God has been so good to us. We are also so grateful to be a part of the Wytheville Baptist Church and please know that we are keeping all of you in our prayers as well. May God's grace continue to give you strength, love, patience, and the appreciation you so deserve.

Thank you so much for helping the Pregnancy Center with our Baby Bottle Campaign!

Please fill your Baby Bottle with spare change, then bring it back to the church on Father's Day, Sunday, June 20.

If you didn't get a Baby Bottle, come by the church office and we will give you one.

All monies collected will benefit the Tri-Area Pregnancy Resource Center.

Thank you again for making a difference in the lives of babies and their mothers in our community!!!!

The Kathryn Isaacs Circle

The Tri-Area Pregnancy Resource Center has served the communities of Grayson and Carroll counties and Galax for years. Through free programs such as "Earn While You Learn" and personal counseling, the center guides its clients toward pro-life decisions and teaches expecting parents about the birth process and how to care for the baby up to eighteen months. The pro-life ministry uses brochures, cards, and models to lovingly explain to pregnant mothers that abortion is not the only option for an unwanted pregnancy. By providing free Christian pro-life pregnancy services, they have guided hundreds of expecting women to make a positive decision for their babies and have provided necessary items to care and support the children.

YOUNG-AT-HEART

CHANGE MATTERS

In 2009, Virginia Baptist students collected $7,660.21 by donating the change from their pockets at various youth events throughout the year. All funds collected in 2009 were used to dig a freshwater well in South Africa and provide indoor plumbing to a family in Southwest Virginia. This year, students are once again donating their change, and have already collected $3,294.59! All offering dollars collected in 2010 will be used in Virginia and around the world to meet the needs of those who suffer from hunger. DISASTER RELIEF UPDATE

Haitian Crisis Update

The earthquake that struck Haiti nearly 4 months ago continues to take its toll on the citizens of that country. While food and water now appear to be in regular supply one of the greatest needs is shelter. Virginia Baptists are seeking ways to provide the best shelter possible while also looking at the long term sustainable response. This plan will be presented in the coming weeks as details are finalized with our partners in the field. Virginia Baptists have responded by contributing over $450,000 toward the relief efforts and funds continue to be offered. As with any disaster, these designated funds will be used to provide direct services to those affected by this tragedy. For more information, click on:

VOLUNTEERS NEEDED! We desire to send teams to Haiti through our partners and are actively searching for volunteers who are ready to respond. Disaster Relief training is no longer a requirement and there are needs currently being unmet. If you can volunteer a week or more of your time to re-
